

Marx for Cats Screening & Dinner

Friday Dec 14. 7-9 pm

Domestic Performance Agency

567 Carlton Ave. Brooklyn

On behalf Leigh Claire La Berge, Caroline Woolard, and Or Zubalsky, Domestic Performance Agency is pleased to invite you to a dinner and screening of Marx for Cats, a new video platform in which La Berge, a professor of political economy, explains key concepts from Marx to a group of (somewhat) interested cats.

The dinner will feature a multi-course menu based on the changing fortunes of food under industrial capitalism, from the denigration of wheat to the monopolization of corn and soy, to the haunting prospect of the dominance of the mass-produced chicken. Our diets are closer to cats' diets than we realize!

We ask attendees to donate some of the monetized fruits of their labor to the Domestic Performance Agency; we suggest donations in the range of: $25 to $100. The cats and the cook are unpaid.

Space is limited; please RSVP to domesticperformanceagency@gmail.com by Dec. 1

Through the month of December, Domestic Performance Agency (DPA) will host a number of special performances which will be housed inside the DPAShop installation that runs through winter Solstice. For more details, list of contributors, and shop hours visit: www.domesticperformanceagency.com
